

5 If Someone Grabs You:

- SCREAM!!!
- Break free and run.
- Run to the nearest house or place of business.
- Tell them what happened.
- Call your parents or the police.
- Do your best to remember what the person looked like.

A MESSAGE to parents and kids

We in the General Assembly make laws because we feel education is an important tool in fighting crime. In fact, crime prevention is not the sole responsibility of law enforcement.

My colleagues and I are especially concerned with the protection of youngsters because they are so often the victim of accidents and criminal attacks. In order to protect them better, law enforcement officers need your help and cooperation. You, the potential victim, play the most crucial role in preventing crime. By following a few simple rules, you can avoid most injuries and dangers.

If practiced, the suggestions contained in this brochure will greatly reduce your chances of becoming the victim of an accident or attack.
